CALL TO ORDER

Chair Kehoe called the meeting to order at 7:07 p.m. He announced the exit locations in accordance with Connecticut General Statutes §29-381 after which the Council joined him in the Pledge of Allegiance.

The Chair gave a brief overview of the Mayor's recommended 2015-2016 budget totaling approximately $178M which represents a 2.4% increase in taxes. The budget provides for an increase in spending of 1.9% and a mill rate of 46.5 mills with the average homeowner seeing a $107 increase in taxes annually.

That portion of the Mayor's recommended budget which is allocated to the Board of Education is approximately $88,000,000 – an increase of $1M, not the $3M requested by the Board. The Chair noted that the state's contribution to the town has increased this year which would give the Council the ability to reduce the Mayor's proposed tax increase, if they so desire.

The following citizens came forth to speak:

John Bezzini, 92 Copper Beech Way, is concerned about the consistent increases in taxes for the aging population in East Hartford. Mr. Bezzini also believes that the property tax system needs to be revised – through the state legislature – in order to lift the financial burden from the working class resident.

Todney Harris, 34 Passaro Drive, a member of the Library Commission, urged the Council to maintain the Mayor's recommended budget for the Raymond Library.

Janice Allison, 97 Copper Beech Way, had questions on how property assessments are determined.

Paul Sousa, 56 Columbus Street, spoke in favor of the high quality level of town services including the Public Works Department and the East Hartford Police Department and recognized their involvement with the community during inclement weather.

Annie Irvine, Vice President of the East Hartford Education Association, a teacher at Langford School, asked that the Council fully fund the Board of Education's budget request.

Susan Kniep, Olde Roberts Street, (1) stated that escalating taxes could result in increased tax lien sales and residents losing their homes; (2) believes that binding arbitration should be revised; and (3) believes that all union contracts should be re-negotiated to help relieve and reduce the tax burden on the citizens of East Hartford.

Debbie Gemme, 62 Farnham Drive, is concerned about her property decreasing in value over the last four years. Ms. Gemme is hopeful that the community and the Council can work together to address property values and bring businesses to East Hartford.

RE: Tax Sale

In order to collect on the delinquencies of 52 properties, the town will be enacting its first tax sale. Attached is a memo from Finance Director Mike Walsh detailing the tax sale process.

In previous years, the town used a process that resulted in the sale of tax liens, and in some instances used the foreclosure process to collect on delinquencies.

This year, the town will be using a process outlined under CGS 12-157 called a tax sale. This route is more efficient from a time and process standpoint and we're also seeing other municipalities experiencing excellent collection rates using the tax sale process.

The total delinquencies on the tax sale property list total $800,518.09.

The 52 properties represent less than 1/3rd of 1% of all accounts.

Scott Chadwick will be on-hand to discuss the process in more detail and answer any questions you might have.

Please place this on the Town Council agenda for the March 17, 2015 meeting.

Thank you.

MEMORANDUM

DATE: March 6, 2015

TO: Marcia A. Leclerc, Mayor

FROM: Michael P. Walsh, Director of Finance

TELEPHONE: (860) 291-7246

RE: Properties Recommended for Tax Sale

Attached please find a list of 52 properties being recommended for the town's first tax sale. The delinquencies on the list totals $800,518.09. For statistical comparison, the town bills and collects taxes on 17,000 properties, so the 52 properties detailed in this list represents less than 1/3rd of 1% of all accounts. However, we have had no collection success to date.

Please recall that in prior years, the town used a process that resulted in the sale of tax liens, and in some instances, we used the foreclosure process to collect on delinquencies. However, this year, we are using a process outlined under CGS 12-157 called a tax sale. We are interested in using this process because it's more efficient from a time and process standpoint and we're also seeing other municipalities experiencing excellent collection success using this tool.

While Scott Chadwick will be on-hand to discuss the process in more detail and answer any questions, the process is summarized as follows (a four page detailed summary is also attached for your review):

1. The owner is mailed a letter demanding payment
2. Three notices are mailed over a 12-week period to everyone who has a property interest
3. A notice of a tax sale is advertised in a local newspaper three times
4. A notice of tax sale is posted near the property or in the Town Clerk's Office
5. An auction takes place at the property/Town Hall; the property is sold to the highest bidder
6. Bidders register for the auction, bring certified funds as a deposit, and place bids
7. The winning bidder is noticed in the paper and notice is sent to the property owner(s)
8. The winning bidder pays the balance of the bid to the town within 5 days
9. The Tax Collector signs a deed transferring the property
10. The deed is held for 6 months allowing the original property owner to redeem the property
11. The owner can redeem the property within 6 months by paying the taxes, interest, and fees

With respect to how a property gets selected for a tax lien sale or a tax sale, as you may recall, the policy criteria applied by the Tax Office that results in a property being selected dictates that any real estate delinquency in excess of $10,000 or any amount when the delinquency spans any portion of three grand list years will be selected.

As background information related to the process followed by the Tax Office, the collection process completed for each grand list year is summarized below.

- The tax bill first installment legal notice is published (the middle of June).
- An individual tax bill is printed and mailed to the property address (late June).
- If full payment is not received, an individual delinquent letter is mailed (August).
- The tax bill second installment legal notice is published (late December).
- If full payment is not received, an individual demand letter is mailed (February).
- If amounts remain unpaid, an individual notice of intention to file lien letter is mailed (May).
- If amounts remain unpaid, a lien is filed by the Tax Collector (by June 30th).

The Finance Department, including the Tax Office, will work closely with Corporation Counsel to facilitate this tax sale.

In closing, while it is regrettable that the town has to initiate this action, despite our best efforts, we have been unable to secure collection with these particular properties. Accordingly, to maintain a fair and equitable tax collection system for the town, we must initiate this action.

Cc: Scott Chadwick, Corporation Counsel
Iris Laurenza, Tax Collector

GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT TAX SALES

IMPORTANT – PLEASE READ

This memorandum answers frequently-asked questions about tax sales for people who have received a notice or are interested in bidding on properties. It is for informational use only. It is not legal advice, and does not interpret or modify applicable law. Since municipalities and their attorneys cannot represent your interests or give you legal advice, you should consult your own lawyer about how tax sales work and what your rights and duties are.

Why did I receive this notice?

This notice was sent to you because you or someone you represent is listed in public records as either owning or holding an encumbrance in real estate which has been slated for public auction to recover delinquent taxes and/or other municipal charges. You may be an owner or occupier, or may have recorded a mortgage or lien against the property. This notice will also be provided to any member of the public who inquires about the auction.

What is a “tax sale”?

A tax sale is a public auction of property conducted by a municipal entity which applies the proceeds against unpaid taxes or similar assessments owed. The sale can be conducted on any real estate owned by an individual or business which has failed to pay any kind of tax, sewer charge, or similar debt (whether it was assessed on that real estate or not) owed to a city, town, borough, district, or other municipal authority.

Is a tax sale a lawsuit?

No. A tax sale does not mean that anyone is being sued, although it is a type of foreclosure. The tax collector of the municipality arranges and conducts the tax sale personally, or through an attorney or other agent, without the involvement of a court. However, if the auction does not bring in enough money to pay the delinquencies, the municipality can make further collection efforts to recover the difference, which might include suing the owner.

How is a tax sale started?

The usual first step is that the owner is mailed a letter demanding payment of the total delinquency at his or her last known address. After that, three notices are mailed over a twelve-week period to everyone who has recorded an interest in the property in the town clerk's office. Notices of the tax sale are advertised in a local newspaper three times, and are also posted near the property or the clerk's office. All delinquency information is available to the public on request.

Can the property be sold before the auction?

The municipality has no power to sell the property to anyone before the auction itself, even to someone who offers to pay the taxes in full. Paying someone else's tax debt does not transfer ownership. On the other hand, the property's owner does remain free to sell the property, but the tax sale will proceed as scheduled unless someone also pays the delinquencies owed to the municipality.

What happens at the auction?

The auction usually takes place at the town hall, municipal office, or the property itself. The notices will specify the location. A sign is posted at the auction explaining the total delinquency, and rules are announced for how the auction will be conducted. The property is then auctioned to the highest bidder. Often, several delinquent properties are auctioned on the same day, one at a time. If the bids are too low, the municipality itself can bid on the property or reschedule the auction.

Who can participate in the auction?

Registration takes place at the time and place of the auction, not before. Any member of the public (other than the owner and encumbrancers) may bid on the property so long as he or she has a nonrefundable deposit in a minimum amount announced by the municipality. The deposit must be in cash or certified funds; personal checks or home equity line checks are not acceptable. Bidders must also bring government-issued ID and be prepared to provide a social security number (if bidding in their own name) or federal tax identification number (if bidding for an entity). Any member of the public may attend and observe the auction, but only those who register can bid.

Can people inspect the property before bidding?

People interested in bidding may research public records like assessment maps, field cards, land records, and similar documents, or look at the property from the road or sidewalk. They may also hire an appraisal service to conduct a curbside value estimate. No one, however, may trespass onto the property itself, or violate the privacy rights of any occupants. The municipality has no power to let interested bidders enter a property being auctioned at any time. (The only exception is that a municipality can authorize ground testing of a property with a known contamination history, with no guarantees as to the environmental condition or whether testing has been or should be done.)

How does the bidding work?

The minimum bid will be an amount determined by the municipality; it is usually the total delinquency including principal, interest, and fees due plus the cost of the auction and any jeopardy acceleration of subsequent installments (see below). Bidding will increase in an orderly fashion and as appropriate to maximize the final price. When someone is declared the highest bidder, he or she submits the deposit and must pay the rest of the bid (also in cash or certified funds) by a fixed deadline. Otherwise, the deposit is forfeited, and the next-highest bid might be accepted instead depending on the rules announced at the auction. All unsuccessful bidders get their deposits back immediately. (Some bidders name themselves as alternative payees – such as, “John Smith OR Pullman & Comley, Trustee” – to simplify getting their money back from their bank.)

What is a “jeopardy acceleration”?

Jeopardy is the acceleration of a tax or other debt owed to the municipality. Although taxes usually become due in separate installments at fixed dates throughout the year, a tax collector who believes that a future installment is unlikely to be paid on time can collect it early. This is often done when an owner has missed several payments in a row, so that future installments can be recovered at the same time as the delinquencies. If budgets or mill rates have not yet been fixed, an estimate is used for the jeopardy amount to be collected, and any balance can be reflected on the next bill.

Where does the money go?

Once paid, the winning bid is immediately used to pay the collection expenses and delinquencies owed in the order required by state law. Any money left over is put into a separate bank account and the municipality keeps the interest it earns. On the other hand, if the winning bid is less than the total delinquency, the owner continues to owe the difference, and the municipality might litigate to collect it, or pursue the person's other income or assets to the extent allowed by law.

What guarantees are given to the auction's highest bidder?

None, other than that the auction is conducted according to the proper legal procedures. The property itself is sold "as is" in every way. There is no guarantee that the property is buildable, up to code, useable for any purpose, or worth the money paid for it. The buyer has sole responsibility to figure out what he or she is getting and to seek out independent legal advice.

What happens after the auction?

After the auction, a notice identifying the highest bidder and price is sent to the owner and everyone else with a recorded interest in the property. This is also published in a local newspaper. The tax collector signs a deed transferring the property to the highest bidder, but holds it in the clerk's office for six months. Nothing else happens during this time. The taxpayer continues to own and use the property; the highest bidder still cannot enter, alter, or sell it. If the highest bidder wants to, he or she may buy insurance to protect the property from fire or loss. (The municipality can give no advice as to whether you should obtain insurance of any kind and cannot recommend any particular insurer.)

When does the highest bidder get title?

Six months after the auction, the deed which the tax collector signed is officially recorded in the land records. The highest bidder owns the property "free and clear" of other liens and encumbrances at that time, except certain kinds such as easements and other taxes. For example, the purchaser would not have to pay off the property's mortgages and judgment liens (unlike in some court foreclosures). The purchaser must pay any taxes and water/sewer charges owed to the municipality conducting the sale which occur after the first sale notice filed in the land records unless they were included in the purchase price. It is solely up to the purchaser to evict any "holdovers" – like the former owner – by legal methods. The purchaser can ask the tax collector to put an affidavit in the land records explaining the details of the tax sale, which may be needed to apply for title insurance.

What about the property's other encumbrancers?

When the highest bidder acquires the property six months after the auction, most other interests in the property are wiped out. This means that mortgages, liens, and other monetary encumbrances – even federal and state liens – the holders of which were notified or aware of the sale will become totally unenforceable against the property and its new owner, except as the notice might otherwise exempt them. The notices might identify additional liens which will survive the auction. If the municipality is holding extra money because the winning bid exceeds the total amount owed, the difference (less any other taxes or debts owed by the same owner) is sent to the local superior court. The former owner and any other person with a recorded interest in the property has 90 days to apply for a share of the money, and the court decides how to distribute it. (The purchaser cannot claim it.)

Can the tax sale be “undone” after it happens?

Yes. The owner or anyone else with a recorded interest in the property can “void” the auction up to six months after it happens, which is why the deed sits in the clerk’s office for that period. This is called a redemption. He or she pays the total delinquency as of the sale date, including the costs of the auction, plus 1.5% per month interest on the winning bid (not on the delinquency), plus any additional debts owed to the municipality not recovered by the auction procedure. If this happens, the highest bidder gets back his or her bid (including the deposit) plus interest. The owner keeps the property, and notices are mailed that the sale has been undone. If the redemption was paid by an encumbrancer, the municipality will issue a certificate authorizing that encumbrancer to sue the owner to be reimbursed. If the IRS has liened the property, it has an additional 120 days to redeem, in which case the buyer will lose title but will also get the bid refund although with only 0.5% monthly interest.

What kinds of expenses are charged to the property owner?

By law, all expenses of arranging and conducting the tax sale are charged to the property’s owner. These usually include fees for title searches, attorney’s hourly rates, newspaper advertising, filings in the land records, certified mailings, and similar costs. This is in addition to the 1.5% monthly interest which accrues on all municipal delinquencies, plus any jeopardy accelerations. These expenses increase significantly as the process moves along, and usually total a few thousand dollars. It is illegal for tax collectors to waive or negotiate these amounts, so any such request will be denied.

How can I prevent the tax sale?

Partial payments, promises to pay, and scheduled closings cannot stop the auction procedure. The tax sale can be stopped before it happens if the owner pays the total amount owed including interest, fees, and expenses. Notices are mailed out to announce the cancellation, and collection efforts cease. Other people with recorded interests in the property can also prevent the sale by paying the delinquency for the owner. They usually do this to keep their liens from being wiped out, and are issued certificates authorizing them to foreclose the amount they pay with enhanced priority over other lienholders along with their original lien. A “payoff” figure is public information, but payoffs cannot be accepted from members of the public with no recorded interest in the property, and need not be paid by auction bidders (since the delinquencies will be paid by the winning bid itself). Bidders are strongly advised to check www.ettaxsales.com a day or two before the auction to determine whether any property in which they are interested has been de-listed due to payment.

What is the deadline for paying?

The final payment deadline is six months after the auction occurs. After that, the property’s title shifts from the taxpayer to the winning bidder, and redemption is no longer possible. Because fees, costs, and interest accrue throughout the entire process, the sooner the payoff occurs (especially before the auction instead of afterward), the cheaper it will be. Auctions and redemption deadlines cannot be postponed at the request of an owner or encumbrancer without a valid court order.

How can I find out more about this tax sale?

For more information about your legal rights and obligations, speak with your attorney. If you have questions about the rules, scheduling, or payoff amount for a specific tax sale, e-mail ajc@pullcom.com (preferred) or call 203-330-2230.

GRANTS ADMINISTRATION MEMORANDUM

TO: Mayor Marcia A. Leclerc

FROM: Paul O'Sullivan, Grants Manager PO'S

SUBJECT: Council Resolution – NCAAA Grocery Delivery Program

DATE: March 10, 2015

Attached is a draft resolution authorizing you as Mayor to enter into a grant contract with the North Central Area Agency on Aging (NCAAA) to operate a grocery delivery program for East Hartford senior citizens.

NCAAA is a regional agency which grants federal dollars to programs benefiting the older adult population. They have granted East Hartford various amounts for many senior citizen programs since 1992. This year we intend to apply for $3,000 to continue funding the Grocery Delivery Program.

The Grocery Delivery Program has operated for the past 10 years by providing homebound residents with grocery delivery service. Seniors pay for their groceries, and the grant funding pays for the cost of the delivery. Approximately 570 deliveries will be provided to East Hartford seniors if the full amount of our request is approved. I have attached a copy of the Project Summary from the application for your information. Please note that the "Town of East Hartford funding" referred to in the summary will be supplied by a grant from Masonicare for senior programs.

The attached Resolution will authorize you as Mayor to make application and execute all documents associated with this grant. I respectfully request that this resolution be included on the Town Council agenda for the March 17, 2015 meeting.

Please contact me at extension 7206 if you have any questions.

PROJECT SUMMARY

In 100 words or less, give a brief summary of the proposed project.

Senior Services is applying for funds to continue its effort at providing grocery delivery services for people who can no longer use Dial-A-Ride to go grocery shopping, or for whatever reason (limited mobility, low vision, restricted lifting/carrying) can no longer shop without assistance.

Identify the need for the project, the project's objectives and list all services to be provided. Where applicable, include the results of any recently conducted needs assessments (e.g. surveys) that support the need for the proposed project.

Need/Brief Summary

The goal of the Town of East Hartford Senior Services is to promote successful aging through a holistic approach and healthy community's model. Senior Services offers comprehensive programs and support services with an emphasis on autonomy and individual empowerment. Numerous programs and services are in place to assist adults age 60 and older.

Research tells us that people who can select their own groceries are more apt to eat what they have selected rather than skip meals or not finish their food. We all like to have a choice, whether it's deciding what to wear, where to go, or what to eat. Choice is good, and we appreciate it when we can make decisions for ourselves. Food choice is highly personal. Each of us selects food based on our own unique background, likes, dislikes, health concerns, and other considerations.¹

Through this grant opportunity, Senior Services is applying for funds to continue its effort at providing grocery delivery services. With funding from NCAAA, past funding from the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and current funding from the Town of East Hartford funding set aside for senior services programs, and in partnership with Geissler's Supermarkets, this program has been successfully operating since 2005. Senior Services considers this valuable program to be part of its continuum of services for people who can no longer use Dial-A-Ride to go grocery shopping, or for whatever reason (limited mobility, low vision, restricted lifting/carrying) can no longer shop without assistance. This grocery delivery service allows people to maintain their independence; older adults can call the grocery store and place their own orders. East Hartford older adults can receive a grocery delivery bi-weekly.

Seniors who can still go grocery shopping use the grocery delivery program for heavy items that are difficult to carry such as milk and laundry detergent. Or people use the service when the weather could make going to the grocery store unsafe, thereby possibly preventing falls. Sidewalks, parking lots, and store floors can be hazardous during inclement weather.

The Grocery Delivery Program is not meant to compete with, or replace, Meals-on-Wheels programs. MOW's is a vital program, but people still need to purchase additional groceries and non-food items like toilet paper, paper towels, soap, cleaning products, and pet food.

As an added bonus, this Grocery Delivery Program helps decrease family or friend caregiver burden by reducing caregiver labor. If an older adult, however, becomes incapable of calling and placing a grocery order for themselves, someone can make the call for them which is less burdensome than shopping.

¹ Department of Foods and Nutrition, Purdue University, 2004.

PROJECT SUMMARY

Service to be Provided

1. Grocery Delivery Service

Project Objectives

1. Provide a grocery delivery program to East Hartford older adults whereby the cost of delivery is not impacting their use of the service.
2. Empower older adults to maintain their independence by placing their own grocery orders.
3. Improve nutrition among older adults who might otherwise skip meals or not consume proper amounts of food.
